

Dr. Sofiya Reicher, MD, FASGE, FACG

Co-founder, Association of Women Endoscopists

Sofiya Reicher, MD, FASGE, FACG Dr. Reicher completed her general GI fellowship training at the Division of Digestive Diseases at UCLA, and interventional endoscopy training at the Harbor-UCLA Medical Center. She is Chief of the Gastroenterology and Hepatology Division and Director of Endoscopy at Harbor-UCLA Medical Center, and is a Clinical Professor of Medicine at the David Geffen School of Medicine at UCLA. Dr. Reicher's clinical and research interests focus on evaluating innovative interventional endoscopic techniques and on improving the diagnostic yield of endoscopic procedures through molecular and immunohistochemical analyses. Dr. Reicher is a co-founder of the Association of Women Endoscopists, an organization that seeks to foster the professional growth of women in the field of interventional endoscopy by providing educational, leadership, and collaborative research opportunities.