DR. JENNIFER KOLB

UCLA and the West LA VA, USA

Dr. Kolb is an Assistant Professor of Medicine and interventional endoscopist at UCLA and the West LA VA. Her clinical work encompasses a broad set of interventional endoscopy procedures including EUS, ERCP, advanced resection, endobariatrics, and third space endoscopy. She has a particular interest in interventions for foregut disease including Barrett's esophagus related neoplasia, esophageal motility disorders, GERD, and obesity. Her research focuses on strategies for early esophageal cancer detection through novel testing modalities, refined screening algorithms for Barrett's esophagus and improved quality of endoscopy.
